

Are you a climate change believer?

146 responses

Do you think the climate is changing?

132 responses

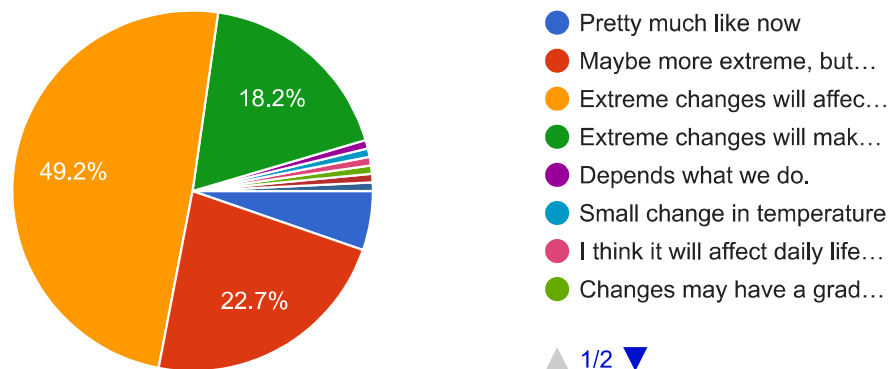

"Scientists will find a way to fix the climate" - do you agree?

132 responses

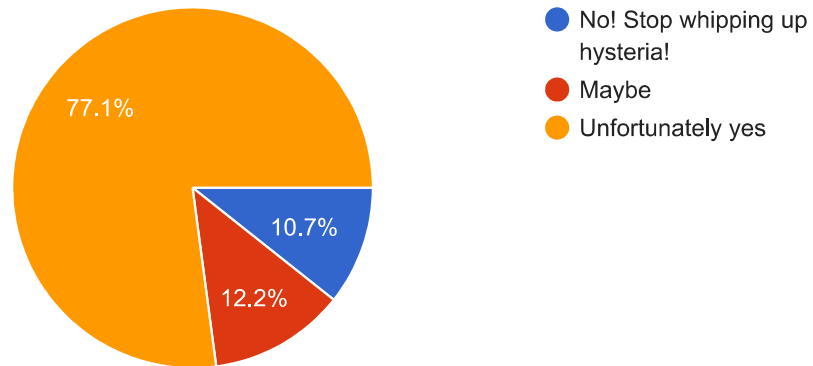

What do you think will the climate be like in the UK in 30 years' time?

132 responses

Do you think there is a "climate emergency"?

131 responses

"To beat climate change the government will need to take some measures as extreme as in wartime" - do you agree?

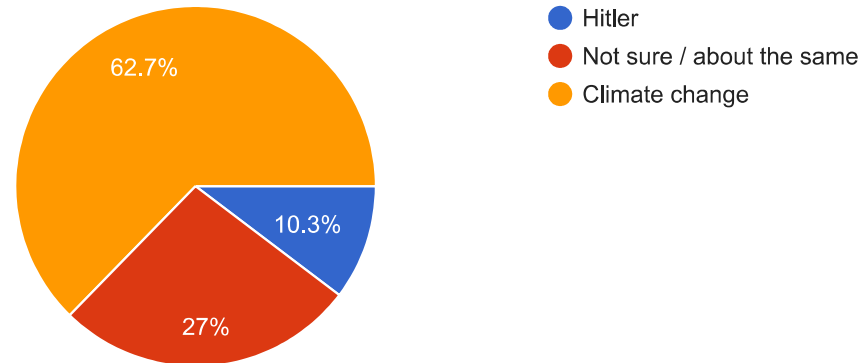

131 responses

● Don't be ridiculous

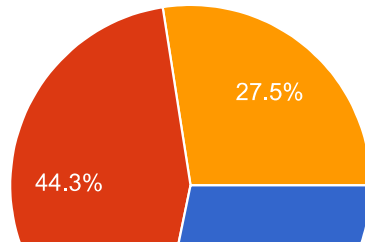

Will beating climate change be harder than beating Hitler was? The biggest challenge:

126 responses

Does climate change justify civil disobedience, like blocking roads?

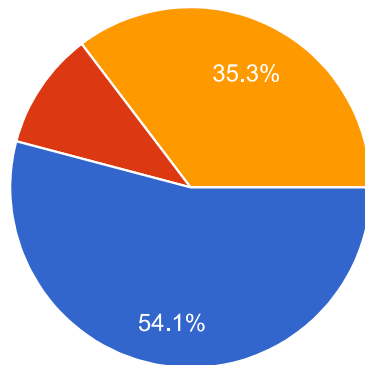

131 responses

- Never. Don't try it in my street.
- Maybe
- Yes!

Have you heard of Extinction Rebellion?

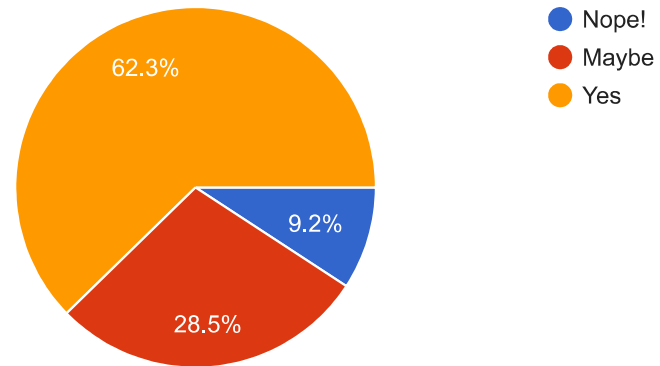

133 responses

- Who?
- Rings a bell
- Yes!

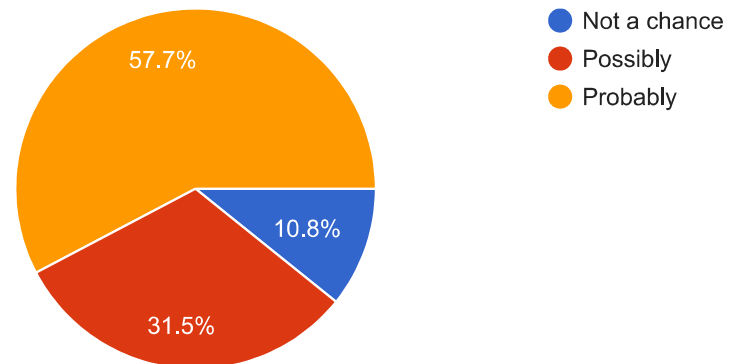

Do you think climate change will mean we will have to do without many things we take for granted now?

130 responses

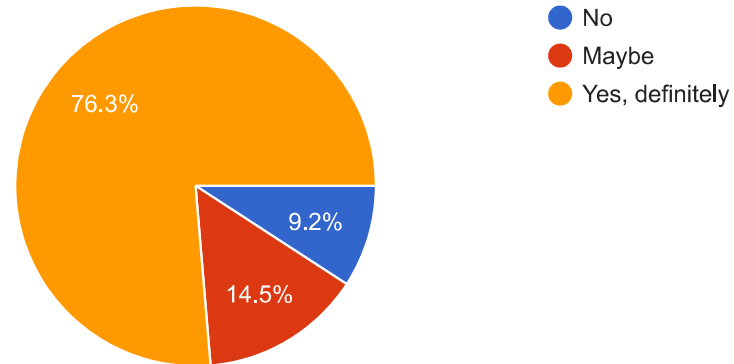

Do you think climate change could lead to more wars?

130 responses

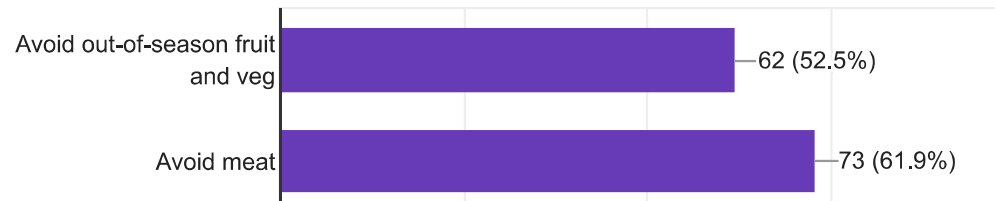

Do you think climate change is already killing people and/or destroying communities around the world?

131 responses

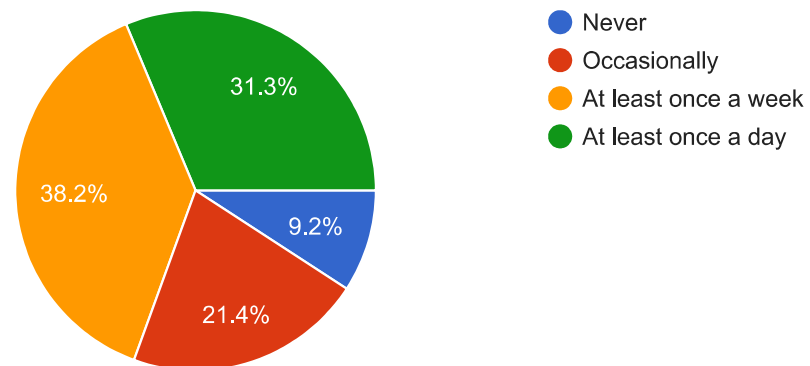

Which of these do you sometimes do because of the environmental consequences?

118 responses

How often do you find yourself worrying about climate change and the state of the environment?

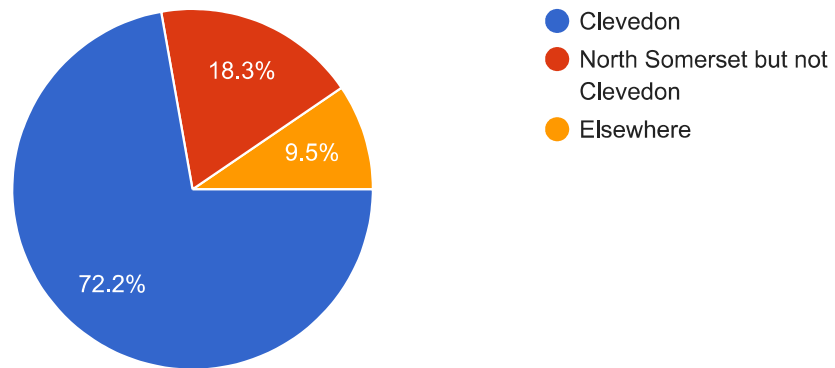

131 responses

Where do you live?

126 responses

Anything else you want to say about climate change and Clevedon?

32 responses

If you don't live on the hill, you're going to need a boat.

On a practical level we are squeezed between rivers and the sea, and at risk of flooding and higher water tables, yet most people don't appear to consider the impact or implication of their daily actions - even when they could be adversely affected. We need to reach a tipping point in awareness and behavioural change very quickly.

Pleased that this opens up the debate in order to get our politicians to at least implement the Paris agreement, and hopefully finding ways that inspire and don't just annoy/upset/antagonise local people.

Public transport should have had investment years ok. Make it easier for people to leave a car at home or sell it.

A Clevedon branch of Extinction Rebellion would be a good development.

As with any political activity in Clevedon, making people angry and ruffling complacency is the only way to wake people up.

Nothing anyone in Clevedon can do would make the slightest tiniest difference while Jets, HGVs, PSVs , German Lignite Power Stations , increasing numbers of dirty Chinese and Asian coal power stations and volcanic activity keep pumping Trillions of cu Tonnes of pollutants into the atmosphere.

The impact of the meat and dairy industry on climate change is drastically underestimated. Going vegan is possibly one of the easiest things to do to make large reductions in each persons carbon footprint.

I believe nuclear power and hydro should not be opposed - we can't get enough power from solar, wind and tide alone.

First question is too broad

There is couple of miss leading items. I don't think that there is Climate Emergency whatsoever.

Fully in sympathy, but not happy about the tone of some of the questions. The question about Hitler is offensive and meaningless.

Answers to theese Questions are leading - If you want honest debate be open to answers that won't support your opinion. (But I do support the opinion you ar getting at)

Climate change does not affect just Clevedon, as I am sure you did not mean to imply!

Climate change is the fundamental problem of our time . Unfortunately there are many big interests particularly in the US that are determined to promote flat earth fake news. Just as with the anti vacc movement we need to counter this and keep the public properly informed.

Climate change needs a big change in perspective at all levels, from doing the minimum to doing what is necessary.

Collecting crisp packets locally would be good, also water refills in cafe's

Public transport out of Clevedon to Bristol and to Yatton train station needs to be made much more convenient so that people will choose not to use their cars.

The survey weakened its case by comparing fighting climate change with fighting Hitler. Not the same thing.

The Hitler question was really not intellectual at all. You can't compare war and death to climate change.

Climate change caused by pollution etc is an issue, but could also be down to our ever increasing demand for resources due to our dominance (over population) of the world. If we could make efforts to reduce this then impacts that are creating climate change may also be reduced naturally - keeping a better balance - and perhaps other species we share the earth with may have a chance.

Living just a few feet above sea level, climate change could have an extremely disruptive effect on my life, but there are many other communities worldwide for whom the issues are even more critical and addressing them is urgent.

I can't say all that I would like as it will tip me over the edge of depression. In order to stand ANY chance of reducing the collateral damage that there is we MUST change our complete value system! Whilst there is a profit first (everybody else pay later) principle, we are stuffed! Until we realise that the monetary economy approach is the origin of destructive practices and work out - aka wake TF up - to the multitude of options, to repeat myself, "We're Stuffed!" (See you at the meeting).

The elephant in the room is overpopulation. This is the big one that is hardly spoken of. Mass migration, famine, disease and war are probable as results of climate change and current migration has already demonstrated public and governments inability to cope with big issues requiring cooperation and joint action

Unfortunately it is a global problem and world governments need to take the lead. Although I am happy to do my bit it seems like a drop in the ocean (excuse the pun).

Hard to know whether it's government first or community first, but something has to change.

Your question about svmcience being able to change things. It definitely can and will. But still worry. Questions are leading rather than gathering. You want an answer

There is not enough emphasis on shopping locally and allowing customers to buy only the small quantities that they need.

I found the question in which the climate change was compared to hitler very odd and inappropriate

Too many shops using single use plastic unnecessarily

I am a student researching climate change and it's impacts on the environment; what is important for the public to know is that warming of the environment IS NATURAL, but the intense warming we are experiencing is being accelerated by humans through emissions and waste. We can tackle this through being mindful of our actions.

with 70 billion animals in factory farms world wide pumping out methane, slurry effecting water and air quality, devastating the wild life and our rain forests as well as effecting human health...this is the biggest problem more that all transport put together....just by stopping eating meat and dairy will make a huge difference.

Come and discuss what we should do at the Climate Emergency meeting!

This content is neither created nor endorsed by Google. Report Abuse - Terms of Service

Google Forms